

“Mission Statement” for eGlidepath

Fred Hermanspann

As the new editor of the newly defined eGlidepath I would like to invite all Evergreen members to participate to make this a worthwhile and useful addition to our website. In order to be a true news source any articles should be posted as soon as they are available and there will no longer be any specific issues.

Time will tell how this will work out, but the goal is to provide an online news site with articles on various topics dealing with events and issues of general interest to ESI members. It should be relevant, entertaining, helpful for all aspects of our operations and stimulating. It will feature pictures as a major tool for relating stories and should give ESI members a better sense of sharing the tribulations and joys of soaring.

As such it will replace the former Glidepath, that tended to be too sporadic and the News tab on the ESI website, that lacked a formal, dedicated editor. While I anticipate providing quite a few articles, I encourage anybody with a story to send me any material that should be shared. With all the great soaring that has taken place recently there should be plenty of it.
